WEEKLY CROP REPORT PRAIRIE PROVINCES

Winnipeg, July 14.—Crop conditions through the prairie provinces continue to be favorable, according to the weekly crop report issued today by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Southern Alberta has greatly benefited by rains during the past week. Continuous wet weather throughout June regarded work of summer-fallow to a considerable extent. Live stock has never been better than it is this year. Cattle receipts on local markets are considerably heavier than previous week, with prices remaining steady.

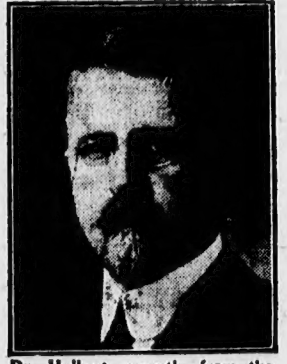

In the province of Manitoba crops continue to do well. There has been ample moisture during the past week and the weather has been ideal for growth. Early wheat on summer-fallow land is from 24 to 29 inches high, and about 50 per cent heading out. Pastures are good throughout the province and stock is in fine condition. Haying has just commenced and there will be heavy crops.

Crop prospects over Saskatchewan continue promising. Wheat is a satisfactory stand, with clean stiff straw and without any indication of rust. The only district reporting any sign of rust is Vantage (Vanguard subdivision) where slight traces of red rust are said to be in evidence. Wheat is headed out, and is about ten days ahead of the average year.

In the province of Alberta crops in general are doing well and conditions give every reason for optimism. It is not meant to imply southern Alberta has no crop failure in sight. But prospects for a bumper crop which seemed inevitable have somewhat changed. Crops in poorly prepared lands are suffering acutely and even grain on well prepared summer-fallow has started to wilt. There is plenty of grass in practically every part of the province and farmers and ranchers are inclined to hold their stock until fall or until such time as they become in good condition.

Dry warm weather with high winds has prevailed during the past week in the Edmonton, Dumfries and B. C. railway districts. Conditions on the whole are good but rain is needed in most parts.

All districts in British Columbia report dry warm weather and conditions favorable for growing crops. Raspberries are beginning to move freely and while the crop will be light in some districts it is expected that the average will be fair. Stone fruits with the exception of sour cherries will be light, and early vegetables are making good progress the report states.

Dr. Hulbert, recently from the Far East, will present an informative message at the Chautauqua.

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor Gleichen Call:

Would you kindly allow me space in your paper to express my sincere appreciation of the splendid effort of Gleichen people for the wonderful exhibit they sent to the Calgary exhibition and stampede. To say it was a wonderful success is to put it mild, and too much praise cannot be given to the men whose untiring efforts achieved such success.

The big team drew big crowds and the distributing of the small sample bags of wheat with the inscription on same was an unique bit of advertising and I doubt if a $100,000 advertising campaign would bring as good results, as people from the old country to Vancouver and from the boundary to Mexico saw the "World's longest team," and received a sample of Gleichen's wheat.

In conclusion will say the people of Gleichen are deeply indebted to those whose untiring efforts achieved such success.

Yours very truly,
W. J. McMULLEN

Judge Bale, who will appear on the Chautauqua. He is a dynamic character with a worth-while message.

FOX FARMING NOW VERY PROFITABLE

Some visitors to the Calgary stampede took a trip to the famous fox ranches of Colpitta twelve miles south of Calgary and report a sight worth going miles to see. Colpitta are the largest breeders of black foxes in the world and their parent ranch in New Brunswick where they have over 3000 pairs of foxes, produced on an average, this season six pups to the pair, the Alberta ranch where they have over 1200 foxes produced an average of four pups per pair. The demand for foxes shows no signs of slackening off, and no chance for it doing so as long as the wealthy classes of England and the United States demand for fur which has no equal. The big sales now are for breeders, many people investing in one pair for foundation stock and from these build up in three or four years a profitable business which makes the business of growing wheat look small. P. E. I. where the big industry started many years ago now has a strong rival in Alberta where we have now many successful ranches which are paying big returns. We know of no more pleasant and instructive trip than one to the ranch near Calgary. It is very near and the attendants at this season of the year are very willing to show everybody around. Several farmers have started this season with one pair of foxes and from these they will soon have a ranch that takes very little operating expense and produces a revenue that is handsome. The U. S. market consumes upwards of $60,000,000 worth of fur a year. These are interesting facts and as the industry is new in Alberta and is so highly profitable our readers should get busy and visit the ranch where they can get first hand information besides seeing a sight that will not soon be forgotten.

The Meadowbrook people invite everyone to spend the afternoon and evening with them.

Chautauqua Opens Saturday

Chautauqua starts off this year with the "McDonald Kiddies"—That's an excellent start. Gleichen people have heard the "kiddies" just often enough to know they are always good and as the rest of the program is said to be equally as good, we are in for a real treat for the entire week starting next Saturday night.

That Chautauqua will be a success this season is a foregone conclusion with 112 of the citizens of this town and district backing it up, and it should hardly be necessary to remind anyone that the committee has signed a guarantee of $1,500 to bring Chautauqua to Gleichen, nor that it is their duty to show their appreciation by not only buying tickets in advance, but by becoming a real booster and assisting in every way that it is possible.

The program this season is a good one, too lengthy to produce here, but copies may be obtained for the asking. It contains two plays, numerous musical numbers and lectures. In brief something to suit every taste in the line of entertainment as well as plenty for each of us, plenty for each of us to learn that will be useful and instructive.

Attend every afternoon and evening and don't forget to bring along the boys and girls—they will do them good.

GLEICHEN HOLDS TWO WORLD RECORDS

The Longest Team in the World
—and—
The World's Best Pulling Team

"The All Blacks from Gleichen" surely made a great "hit" in Calgary last week. Everywhere one went in the city "The All Blacks" seemed the subject under discussion, coupled with the names of Slim Moorehouse, Chris Bartsch and Tom Kelly. Mr. Bartsch being the manager and Mr. Kelly taking over the management when Mr. Bartsch returned home to Gleichen.

Gleichenites heard compliments on every side of the "World's Longest Team", one and all admitting that Gleichen had captured the greatest amount of advertising of the whole exhibition. The last evening of the big fair and immediately after the world's longest team had made its turn in front of the grandstand, the owners were summoned to platform where

JULY 29, 30 and 31, 1925

The program for the Nineteenth Annual Convention of the Western Canada Irrigation Association, which is to be held at Kelowna, British Columbia, July 29, 30 and 31, has just been published and contains many interesting and instructive addresses on subjects related to irrigation farming and irrigation development generally. The convention will be opened on the morning of July 29, by the Honorable Walter C. Nichol, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia. The visitors will be welcomed to Kelowna by the mayor, D. W. Sutherland, who will be followed by Grote Stealing, M. P., the chairman of the executive of the association. Visitors to the convention are assured in advance of a warm welcome from the Kelowna people.

The Trail Ranger camp of the United Church Sunday School is re-presented at the big camp Nissaki at Jumping Pound, near Cochrane, by eight members. Courses in camp life, bird life and botany are part of the program. Supervised swimming, hikes and a baseball tournament are part of the activities

SALE OF GOVERNMENT HOUSE UNDECIDED YET

Premier Greenfield has issued the following statement with respect to the resolution passed last session by the legislature recommending the sale of government house as a measure of economy:

"The resolution in reference to government House passed by the legislature on March 30, made certain recommendations only regarding the future disposition of the property. Since that time the advisability or otherwise carrying out of the recommendations embodied in the resolution have been and are being carefully canvassed, and the government will be prepared to inform the legislature what course, in its judgment, should be followed in dealing with the recommendations of the resolution. In the meantime no disposition will be made of the property."

Canada's Tied-Up Resources

Parliament, the railways, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Labor Unions, and public bodies generally, are still struggling with the problems involved in finding a remedy for the lack of population, recurring periods of unemployment, and slowness of development and prosperity in Canada. That there is something wrong somewhere, all admit, but no two groups are agreed as to the nature of the remedy to be applied.

The railways urge the need of larger immigration in order to overcome the lack of population without which it is argued the natural resources of the Dominion cannot be developed. It is also urged that in the matter of railways, manufacturing industries, and national equipment of all kinds, Canada is over-equipped for its present population, and that, until there is a large consuming population, the railways cannot operate to full capacity, nor can factories be fully manned and operated the year round. Thus we have advocates of a wide open door policy in immigration.

Labor Unions combat this argument and declare that so long as men are out of employment many months in the year because they cannot get work, immigration should be further restricted rather than increased. They claim that instead of bringing more people into Canada, conditions should be so improved here as to provide adequate employment and thus stop the exodus of thousands of Canadians annually to the United States.

The manufacturers have their own pet solution, the sure cure for all Canada's economic ills, namely, higher tariff protection; in other words, the creation of a Customs wall sufficiently high to keep out the manufactured goods of the British Isles and the United States. They argue that if this was done, there would be employment for all Canadian artisans and workmen, but, they contend, they cannot compete with the United States and British manufacturers. Despite these statements and assurances, the fact remains that Canada's present population is too small to absorb the output of its industries, and our manufacturers are competing successfully with United States and British manufacturers in world markets.

There is, however, a basic reason for Canada's economic difficulties and lack of development commensurate with the wealth and variety of its natural resources, but, unfortunately, nobody has the courage to frankly state the difficulty on the floor of Parliament or in open convention of the organizations to which recourse has been made.

On more than one occasion in the past the statement has been made in this column that the chief ground of complaint against the Canadian manufacturer on the score of the tariff has been the use made by him of the tariff protection he has enjoyed for the past forty or fifty years; that is, that he has used the tariff merely to add to the selling price of his goods in the Canadian home market instead of using it, as Germany, United States and Japan have used it, to protect a tariff, or develop their natural resources for use at home and abroad. Instead the Canadian manufacturer has followed the line of least resistance and has gone on importing raw and semi-manufactured materials which by a little initiative and enterprise, and the investment of capital on the part of the Canadian manufacturer, could have been produced in Canada, thereby providing employment, keeping capital at home, reducing costs of transportation, and reducing the adverse balance of trade as between this country and the United States.

The reason Canada's present population is so small despite the great efforts put forth to attract immigrants; the reason why factories are not busily engaged and fully staffed all the year round; the reason there is an annual exodus of Canadians to the United States; the reason there is unemployment; the reason why our railways are not worked to capacity, is to be found in the fact that to a very large extent the natural resources of the Dominion are still lying dormant, undeveloped for use, and, most regrettable of all, are now to a great extent tied up so that their development in the near future is practically out of the question.

In the next article to appear in this column explanation will be made of the last statement and outlining what is considered to be the most serious situation confronting this Dominion and its future, and one which, unless our Federal Government and those of the Provinces which have control of their own resources lose neither time nor courage in dealing with, may result in ultimately breaking the Dominion.

Buffalo Park For Brandon

A buffalo park within 16 miles of the city is planned by the Brandon board of trade which is taking the matter up with the federal authorities. The only difficulty in the way of the park's establishment now is the financing of the big fence to surround the range. The buffalo will be obtained from the Walworth Park in Alberta.

Has Fairly Good Record

League of Nations Gains Ground Although Facing Difficulties

Professor Stephen Leacock, of McGill University, is reported as taking a rather pessimistic view of the possibilities of the League of Nations under present conditions. While he was a strong supporter of the League of Nations he declared that he had no confidence in it as constituted today.

Considering what Europe was like before the war, the rather general scepticism about the league when it was formed six years ago and the difficulties which it has had to contend with, it is something that the league has even survived. Where there is life there is hope. And the league has a fairly good record of achievement to its credit. There are enormous difficulties, of course, still in its way, but what has been accomplished so far should inspire faith in the future and greater efforts to see that the ground already gained is not lost.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Man Giving Free Blood Transfusions Has Services Recognized

B. W. Bibble, of London, a poor man, received double honors in connection with the King's birthday. He was honored by having conferred on him a medal of the Order of the British Empire, "for public services in saving life," and in addition thereto, the London Hospital elected him a life member of the hospital board.

Bibble's public services, which were thus honored by the crown and the hospital, consisted in giving of his blood for transfusion purposes at the hospital without remuneration. The customary fee for such service at the London Hospital is £5.

HELP FOR TIRED NERVOUS PEOPLE

Found in the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Are you pale and weak, tired most of the time, out of breath on slight exertion?

Are you nervous, is your sleep disturbed so that rest does not refresh you?

Is your appetite poor, your digestion weak and do you have pains after eating?

If you have any of these symptoms you need the help of such a reliable tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Read what Mr. W. W. Francis, of Calgary, Alta., says of this tonic. "After returning from overseas," writes Mr. Francis, "my whole system was in a badly run down condition. I became nervous, irritable, pale and lost weight. Of course I was given treatment and recommended many tonics, some of which I took, but with no apparent result. At last I could not even sleep. My sister, who is in England, wrote and urged me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and I can hardly say how glad I am that I took her advice. My friends were surprised at my complete recovery, but I assured them it was due entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I now always keep a box on hand in case of emergency."

If you are ailing give these pills a fair trial and they will not disappoint you. Sold by all dealers in medicine or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Crop Registration

Nearly Two Thousand Fields Were Registered In 1924

Crop registration service of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association increased by almost one hundred per cent. during 1924. In 1923 about one thousand fields were registered and in 1924 nearly two thousand. Averages of seed crops registered last year were roughly: wheat, 17,500 acres, 355,000 bushels; oats, 11,000 acres, 482,000 bushels; barley, 500 acres, 15,000 bushels; flax, 550 acres, 9,200 bushels; alfalfa, 4,000 acres, 480,000 pounds.

Donates Trophy For Competition

Prince Sends Silver Cup to Banff Golf Club

On more than one occasion the Prince of Wales, during informal visits to his ranch in Alberta, has visited Banff, Alta., and played golf on the "Roof of the World." Last year, during his flying visit to Canada, he again had a round of the links—possibly the most picturesque on the continent. And now, this season, the members of the Banff Golf Club will have the rare pleasure of playing for a trophy from His Royal Highness, a beautiful silver cup with the graceful Prince of Wales' feathers inscribed thereon, which was recently received from London. Needless to say, perhaps, how the golfers of Banff appreciate this unique compliment and how zealously the trophy will be prized and keenly competed for.

Revenue From Doll's House

Many Thousands Of Pounds Go To Queen Mary's Charities

It will be remembered that Queen Mary granted permission for the Queen's Doll's House to be placed on view at the Daily Mail Ideal Home Exhibition at Olympia, West Kensington, in March. The result of its exhibition was that £5,500 was paid to the "Doll's House Account," which is devoted to charities in which the Queen is specially interested. In the special pavilion designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens (who also designed the Doll's House) this beautiful model was inspected by 162,226 visitors during the exhibition. This means that about one person in every four who went to Olympia paid to see it. The total of £5,500 was handed to Her Majesty for charity without any deductions whatever.

Trade With North Country

Trading More With United Kingdom and Less With United States

Canada is trading more with the United Kingdom and less with the United States, according to a bulletin issued by the bureau of statistics. Imports from the United Kingdom were practically the same as the year before, the reduction being only two millions. Imports from the United States showed a drop of $90,000,000.

A Martyr To Science

Radium Authority Dies As a Result of Destructive Rays

Dr. Edward E. Leman, a radium authority, died recently at East Orange, N.J., a martyr to the advancement of science. His life had been sapped little by little by the destructive rays of the element to which he had devoted 12 years of research.

Dr. Leman began probing the secrets of radium in 1911, while a student of chemistry at the University of Chicago. Conscious of the power of the element with which he worked, the scientist remained faithful to his chosen task until death.

He left the world acknowledged as the leader of scientific research work in his field. Through his 13 years of work, Dr. Leman extracted more pure radium from ore than any of his contemporaries. A large part of the world's supply of radium, 150 grams, has been contributed by his efforts.

Kept Prisoners By Bees

Thousands Took Possession of Porch In Louisville, Kentucky

The family of Mathias Poschinger, Louisville, Ky., were recently held virtual prisoners in their home by bees, estimated to have numbered many thousands.

The bees, vagrants from a nearby wood, took possession of the Poschinger front porch at 9:30 o'clock a.m. Every attempt by the besieged family to gain freedom was promptly block by the insects.

The Poschingers called in a bee expert, who advised that water be thrown on the bees. When the bees were dampened so they could not fly they were swept into sacks.

Address Given By W. B. Cameron, Sole Survivor of Massacre

Over 300 people assembled at Frog Lake recently to attend the unveiling of a tablet erected to the memory of the men who fell in the Frog Lake massacre in April, 1885.

The gathering was addressed by W. B. Cameron, the only white man who escaped in that affray, and who had come from Vancouver.

Mr. Cameron detailed all the circumstances in connection with the massacre, afterwards taking the people over the ground, indicating where the various buildings were situated, and where the actual shooting took place.

Rev. A. Ahenatkw, superintendent of missions to Cree Indians in connection with the Church of England, also gave an address, in which he interpreted the massacre from the standpoint of the Indian mind.

SHORTNESS OF BREATH

Mrs. Geo. E. Bowman, Morrisburg, Ont., writes:—"I am writing you a few lines to let you know of my experience with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. "Two years ago I became very poorly with my heart and nerves and whenever I took the least little bit of exercise my heart would start to jump and flutter. I could not walk upstairs without having to sit down and rest before I was half-way up, on account of my breath becoming so short. I commenced taking

Ideas Are Often Valuable

Sometimes (not every day) a person has an idea. Too often he pays no attention to it. It flits across his mind for a moment. Then he allows his thoughts to go wandering on to something else. The idea dies.

It is by following up their bright ideas that men have become inventors. So the next time an idea comes to you, don't let it go. Grasp it, think about it, and maybe it will bring fame and fortune.

Monster Tuna Taken in Canadian Waters

As a writer of stirring tales of the Border and the mid-western states in the early days, Zane Grey has made an enviable record for himself, but now along he comes with another—a fish story—and better still, presents the proof in photograph, so that his yarn does not take on the semblance of a dream or a good bit of story-telling.

Tuna, weighing nearly half a ton, are the reward of ambitious anglers who fish in Nova Scotian waters, particularly in St. Ann's Bay, off Cape Breton. Three mammoth tuna have been taken from this locality, each holding the world's record in turn. Captain Laurie D. Mitchell's 710 pound tuna held a record for a number of years, till along came J. K. L. Ross of Montreal, well known as an owner of racing horses, director of the Canadian Pacific Railway and his skill as a fisherman. He landed a tuna after a 8½ hours' fight, that measured 9 ft. and 2 in. in length, and 6 ft. in girth, and tipped the scales at 712 lbs. thus winning the honour of record tuna fishing from Captain Mitchell by 2 lbs.

His record seemed secure, when along in August, 1924, came Zane Grey and his brother, R. C. Grey, eager to catch big tuna. They used a Nova Scotian-built schooner, a staunch little craft admirably adapted for their plans and needs. They got three tuna, weighing respectively: 686, 684, and then as a climax, the biggest tuna ever landed, weighing 768 pounds. Had they gone in for anything larger, it would have required a C. P. R. freight car to haul it to the cannery at St. Andrews. The time taken to land the first was 6 hours and 10 minutes, for the second, 88 min. which was caught by R. C. Grey, and 8 hours and 10 min. were spent to conquer the record breaker with which Zane Grey is said to have wrested the palm from the C. P. R. director and won the title of champion tuna fisherman.

Other big fish of various species taken in various Canadian waters, include a record pike caught in Big Lac Nominique in the Laurentians of Quebec, weighing 58 lbs.; a 88½ lb. muskellunge caught in 1924 in French River, Ontario, by Samuel W. Franklin of New York City; the world's record speckled trout, weighing 14½ lbs., taken from Nipigon River by Dr. J. W. Cook of Fort William; and a great Northern pike, 4 ft. long with a weight of 21 lbs., which gave Harold Sweetser of New York a 45 minute fight on the Nipigon.

Canada's infinitude of rivers and lakes are filled with a vast wealth of fish, many of them of record measurements and weight. The foregoing are sportsman's records.

GLEICHEN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY*SATURDAY NIGHT PARKING

Gleichen like every other town does not have sufficient parking space for automobiles at times when there are numerous persons in the down town district. This is especially true of Saturday nights.

Almost every Saturday night the main business street is congested with automobiles and parking space is at a premium, so many are the people who come to Gleichen for the evening.

Gleichen residents can help to a certain extent to relieve this congestion by leaving their automobiles at home. It would be comparatively easy for Gleichen people to walk down town on Saturday night.

Some town residents park their autos on the main street on Saturday night and thereby close the spaces to those who come here from a distance. It is a severe handicap to out of town traders to find parking space at a premium. The retail business district should be kept as free as possible of Gleichen cars on Saturday night. There will be enough non-residents here to take up all the space available in the business area and it is a matter of courtesy and hospitality to give them the right of way for that night.

Leave your own car in the garage on Saturday nights if you reside in Gleichen, or else park it out of the business district. Try the plan a while and see how well it works and how much comfort it will add to the traders' trip to Gleichen.

BOY SCOUTS GIVE TIMELY WARNING

The Boy Scouts of Canada are out after the scalps of merchants who sell .22 rifles made in Germany and Belgium. Recently a 16-year-old boy of Toronto was shot by the discharge of a .22 rifle by the striking of the butt upon the floor. It was stated at the inquest that the dangerous character of the rifles had been brought to the attention of the authorities, but that the weapons were still coming into country. The boy killed was not a Scout, but the Scouts are asking that all boys be warned and all merchants requested not to buy or sell these rifles.

Success is the difference between what you take in and what you pay out.

The automobile, when properly used, is needed by the farmer perhaps more than anyone else. It can be made a great labor saving and money saving implement.

The community ought not to stand for a newspaper that does not stand for the community; and nothing but an unwarranted modesty keeps us from stating the reverse of the proposition.

Some people call it cheap aristocracy, still it is very expensive. We are all more or less guilty. Daughter thinks she must have a new and different dress for every party. Father simply will not do without a set of balloon tires, while son matches them with balloon pants, and throws a couple of perfectly good narrow bottom trousers into the discard.

After all real happiness cannot come from without, but must come from within. Gleichen is a desirable place in which to live; the surroundings are most pleasing, and you need pause but a minute to think of the many advantages here. And if you will but look around you will quickly come to the conclusion that nowhere can you find more real happiness.

When you were at school did you root for your own team or the visiting team? Silly question, isn't it? Then why are you not just as anxious to boost your own town? Dollars spent here mean a lot more to you and your family and community than whether your ball team cleaned up on the other team even if it were more exciting. The games are forgotten but a lessening of your allegiance to your home town leaves an indelible impression upon your community adverse to its prosperity.

Almost everyone is living beyond their income and knows it. Undue pride, ruinous vanity, cheap aristocracy, is the cause. We seem not to have the mental resources at our command to rebuff the gossip-minded individual who peers at us with a crucial eye if things are not exactly right. We seem not to have sense enough to be sensible, and not strong enough to stand what our neighbors will think. We have gone mad in trying to do like, act like, look like the millionaires that we certainly are not.

King Boris, of Bulgaria, recently got his mustache shot at from ambush. Evidently they mistook his majesty for one of our Canadian sheiks.

"Judging from the amount of sound business activity noticeable here, British Columbia is launching into an era of constructive development which augurs well for her future prosperity," comments Grant Hall, Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who recently spent ten days on the Pacific Coast.

"So long as the Canadian Pacific Railway has a dollar left in its treasury, it will fight for the ideals, uphold the faith and maintain the precious heritage of confederation," said E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, when addressing the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at their annual convention held at Hamilton recently.

Eleven hundred pounds of speckled trout, gray trout and pike were the trophies taken back to New York recently by seven members of the Coughnawaga Hunting and Fishing Club, private preserves near Montreal, after a two-week stay on the fishing grounds. The catch included a 19-lb. gray trout and the average weight of the rest at around eight pounds.

Frank W. Ashby, secretary of the Australian Manufacturers' Association, visiting here recently, said the impression in Australia was that Canada was the back door to the North Pole. People in the Antipodes think that Herschel Island and Baffin's Bay are linked up municipally with Montreal and Winnipeg, he said. He was surprised to find the Dominion had a delightful climate and cities more modern than those in Australia.

What is stated to be the biggest log jam in sixty years recently occurred on the Montreal River in a gorge through which the river flows into Lake Temiskaming. 800,000 logs were piled up to a height of 80 feet with a width of 250 yards, choking the river for 800 yards down at the point where the jam took place. An army of 100 men, working night and day for three days, at last succeeded in breaking the jam with dynamite.

A three-week tour of Canada by teachers and their friends, under the auspices of Dean S. Laird, of Macdonald College, will leave Toronto July 20 on the Canadian Pacific Railway. The party will travel by train to Vancouver and Victoria, and will return by way of Southern British Columbia, across the northern end of the Prairie Provinces and by boat from Fort William east. Stops will be made at all the principal points of interest.

CAPTAIN BLOOD
RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitaphone picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

CHAPTER XXVI.—Continued.

"It's myself he's hunting at Tortuga, my lord," said Blood. "But, I'm thinking that while he's about it, I'd best be looking after Jamaica for King William." He laughed, with more mirth than he had used in the last two months. "Set a course for Port Royal, Jeremy, and make all speed. We'll be level yet with M. de Rivarol, and wipe off some other score at the same time."

"But you are not equal to it, damme!" cried his lordship. "Any one of the Frenchman's three ships is a match for both yours, my man."

"In guns—aye," said Blood, and he smiled. "But there's more than guns that matter in these affairs. If your lordship would like to see an action fought at sea as an action should be fought, this is your opportunity."

"Rivarol carries in his hold the treasure plundered from Cartagena, amounting to forty million livres. He has gone into Port Royal with it. Whether he defends me or not, he doesn't come out of Port Royal with it again, and sooner or later that treasure shall find its way into King William's coffers, after, say, one-fifth share shall have been paid to my buccaneers. Is that agreed, Lord Willoughby?"

His lordship stood up, and shaking back the cloud of lace from his wrist, held out a delicate white hand.

"Captain Blood, I discover greatness in you," said he.

"Sure it's your lordship has the fine sight to perceive it," laughed the Captain.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Last Fight of the Arabella

It was the afternoon of that same day, and the two buccaneer ships rocked gently with idly flapping sails under the lee of the long spit of land forming the great natural harbor of Port Royal, and less than a mile from the straits leading into it, which the fort commanded. It was two hours and more since they had brought up thereabouts, having crept thither unobserved by the city and by M. de Rivarol's ships, and all the time the air had been aquiver with the roar of guns from sea and land, announcing that battle was joined between the French and the defenders of Port Royal. That long, inactive waiting was straining the nerves of both Lord Willoughby and van der Kuylen. Blood faced them, smiling confidently. "It's this way, now: there's nothing at all to be gained by precipitancy, and a deal to be gained by delaying, as I shall show you, I hope. Sure, it'll be time enough to go forward when the fort has shot its bolt. . . . He broke off to listen. "Aye, I was right. The fire's slackening. Ho there, Jeremy!"

Came the padding of feet along the decks, the creaking of blocks and the hoisting of sail. The helm was put over hard, and in a moment they were moving, the Elizabeth following, ever in obedience to the signals from the Arabella, whilst Ogle, the gunner, whom he had summoned, was receiving Blood's final instructions before plunging down to his station on the main deck.

Led now by Blood himself, they launched themselves upon the French.

Within a quarter of an hour they had rounded the head and stood in to the harbor mouth, within saker shot of Rivarol's three ships, to which they now abruptly disclosed themselves.

Where the fort had stood they now beheld a smoking rubbish heap, and the victorious Frenchman with the lily standard trailing from his mainmast was sweeping forward to snatch the rich prize whose defences he had shattered.

Blood scanned the French ships, and chuckled. The Victrolense and the Medusa appeared to have taken no more than a few scars; but the third ship, the Balaize, listing heavily to starboard so as to keep the great gash in her starboard well above water, was out of account.

The sight of that great red ship with her gilt breast-plate and open ports swinging broadside on must have given cheek to Rivarol's soaring exultation. Yet before he could move to give an order, before he could well resolve what order to give, a volcano of fire and metal burst upon him from the buccaneers, and his decks were swept by the murderous scythes of the broadside. The Arabella held to her course, giving place to the Elizabeth, which, following closely, executed the same manoeuvre. And then, whilst still the Frenchmen were confused, panic-stricken by an attack that took them so utterly by surprise, the Arabella had gone about, and was returning in her tracks, presenting now her starboard guns, and loosing her second broadside in the wake of the first. Came yet another broadside from the Elizabeth and then the Arabella's trumpet sent a call across the water which Hagthorpe perfectly understood. "On, now, Jeremy!" cried Blood. "Stand by, there! Prepare to board! Hayton . . . the grapnels!" Briskly he explained himself to his two guests. "Boarding is our only chance here. We are too heavily outgunned."

Of this the fullest demonstration followed quickly. The Frenchmen having recovered their wits at last, both ships swung broadside on, and concentrating upon the Arabella as the nearer and heavier and therefore more immediately dangerous of their two opponents, volleyed upon her jointly at almost the same moment. The Arabella rocked and staggered under that terrific hammering. For a moment she seemed to hesitate, then she plunged forward with a gaping hole forward, that was only just above the water-line. Meanwhile, the Frenchmen going about, gave the like reception to the Elizabeth. The Arabella, indifferently served by the wind, pressed forward to come to grips. But before she could accomplish her object, the Victrolense had loaded her starboard guns again, and pounded her advancing enemy with a second broadside at close quarters. Amid the thunder of cannon, the rending of timbers, and the screams of maimed men, the half-wrecked Arabella plunged and reeled into the cloud of smoke that concealed her prey, and then from Hayton went up the cry that she was going down by the head. The blue and gold flank of the Victrolense loomed through the smoke. But even as Blood caught that enheartening glimpse he perceived, too, how sluggish now was their advance. They must sink before they reached her. But they had not yet completely failed. Hayton himself, and a score of sturdy rogues whom his whistle had summoned, were crouching for shelter amid the wreckage of the forecastle with grapnels ready. Within seven or eight yards of the Victrolense, when their way seemed spent, and their forward deck already awash under the eyes of the jeering, cheering Frenchmen, those men leapt up and forward, and hurled their grapnels across the chasm. Of the four they flung, two reached the Frenchman's decks, and fastened there. Unhesitatingly all three themselves upon the chain of one of those grapnels, neglecting the other, and heaved upon it with all their might to warp the ships together. Blood sent out his voice in a clarion call:

"Musketeers to the prow!" Flity of them dashed forward instantly, and from the ruins of the forecastle they blazed over the heads of Hayton's men, moving down the French soldiers who, unable to dislodge the iron, firmly held where they had deeply bitten into the timbers of the Victrolense, were themselves preparing to fire upon the grapnel crew.

Starboard to starboard the two ships swung against each other with a jarring thud. The advance guard of boarders, a hundred strong, were ordered to the poop, grapnel-men were posted, and prompt to obey Blood's command at the very moment of impact. As a result, the foundering Arabella was literally kept afloat by the half-dozen grapnels that in an instant moored her firmly to the Victrolense.

Led now by Blood himself, they launched themselves upon the French like hounds upon the stag they have brought to bay. For fully half-an-hour that battle raged aboard the Frenchman. The French resisted stubbornly, and they had the advantage of numbers to encourage them. But for all their stubborn valor, they ended by being pressed back and back across the decks that were dangerously canted to starboard by the pull of the water-logged Arabella. The buccaneers fought with the desperate fury of men who know that retreat is impossible, for there was no ship to which they could retreat, and here they must prevail and make the Victrolense their own, or perish.

Removing Salty Taste

A recipe which dates from the days of "salt junk" in the navy is given by an ex-naval man. He says salted meat should be placed, uncooked, overnight in cold, well salted water, about half a teacupful of salt to a gallon of water. This sounds a strange cure for saltiness, but the sender says it is a fact that in the morning the salt will be removed from the meat.

People who live in spring suits should not open milk bottles.

Earliest Train Exhibited

One of Novel Features at English Centenary Celebration

A curious procession travelled over the road of the world's first railway between Stockton and Darlington on July 2 to celebrate the centenary of the opening of the railway.

First came Hetton Colliery, one of the first locomotives puffing away at a speed of 6 miles an hour as it did on its first run in 1822.

This and other old-stager set the pace to great modern locomotives drawing luxurious carriages sent by the great railway companies.

The procession was six miles long and showed the century's development from the ancient rolling stock and primitive engines to the most modern equipment, including motor and electrically driven trains. One train was composed of flat wagons, each presenting a tableau.

Last but not one came the "City of Newcastle," the L.N.E.R. Company's newest and greatest locomotive, drawing one of the trains of the Flying Scotsman service.

This was followed by Locomotion No. 1, George Stephenson's engine, drawing a replica of the train it hauled on the memorable day, September 27, 1825, when the line was opened.

In the seats across the old wagons was a band wearing uniforms just like the band wore on the opening day.

The Duke and Duchess of York were among those watching this procession.

Part of National Expression For Japan and China

Lanterns in all their grades of picturesque beauty are inseparable from the life of the Chinese and Japanese. In all groups and classes and environments the lanterns of the Orient fashioned of paper and bamboo, of horn, porcelain and bronze, of wood and of stone and lacquer, painted, embroidered, carved or bejeweled, form a part of the national expression.

Even the oriental heaven has its sky lantern, while the New Year celebrations are brought to a triumphant close on the 15th of the first moon, by giving the lanterns that are set out in the dooryard to light the way of the bidden one through the various courts which they may have to travel, are the essence of good cheer and courtesy.

Coffee Is Good Stimulant

Better Than Alcohol Says Dean of College of Pharmacy

Alcohol is unjustly famous as a stimulant, while coffee is insufficiently praised, Dean Henry H. Rusby of the Columbia College of Pharmacy said in a lecture on "What the World Drinks and Why."

Alcohol is depressing, Dean Rusby argued, because it paralyzes fear and restraint. Men slightly under its influence can do more work, he continued, but they do not do it well. Coffee and tea are truly stimulating, on the other hand, enabling a user to work beyond normal strength, although later he must pay the penalty for losing sleep.

The daily consumption of tea in Great Britain amounts to over one million pounds.

Collection For London Zoo Provided Plenty of Thrills

The London Zoo has just welcomed a most interesting collection of rare creatures—perhaps the finest to arrive in the country since the war.

It was brought from Singapore by C. H. Hicks, of the Zoo staff, and he never had a dull moment on the 35 days passage.

For example, his cabin door opened to admit the whiskered face of a seaman announcing stolidly, "Cobra adrift, sir." Then Mr. Hicks, with the moral support of the entire crew, went out with a stick, pinned down the hooded head, and put the squirming death back in its box.

Or it might be, "Tapir adrift, sir." Then followed what Mr. Hicks describes as bull-fighting, with bananas instead of a sword.

Another time it was, "Two sun-bears adrift, sir." These were discovered curled up in bunks belonging to Chinese passengers.

These Chinese had one golden moment. A fine turtle had died. Mr. Hicks conducted an inquest on the remains, while the Orientals stood by with a pot of boiling water. Soup followed.

Fisherfolks Greatest Holiday

Blizzard Coming Around March 18th Makes Work Impossible

Among the Newfoundland fisherfolks the greatest holiday of the year is known as Shella's Brush, which falls on the 18th of March. Primarily the word "brush" in the dialect of the island means a storm or blizzard, and because fishing is impossible at such times a "brush" has come to mean a cessation of work. In short, a holiday; enforced if you please, but none the less a holiday.

Newfoundland has two brushes. Patrick's and Shella's, that is to say, storms supposed to be connected with the birthday of St. Patrick and that of Shella, his wife.

Of course, these atmospheric disturbances, corresponding to what we term the equinoctial gales, do not always come exactly to date; but any storms occurring about this time are named in honor of these saints.

Then, when the blizzard from the frozen Arctic sweeps down upon the island, and is all milk and gloom outside, inside the stone-built houses is light and warmth, and jollity continued sometimes for as many as forty-eight hours on end.

Earthquakes In Britain

Records Show Average of More Than One a Year

Reports of earthquakes in Great Britain are usually dismissed as being of no importance.

This is reasonable, because, compared with countries such as Japan, where an earthquake occurs on the average once a day, Great Britain escapes very lightly. The earth tremors felt not long ago at Redruth, for example, did no more than rattle a few windows and dislodge several chimney pots.

Yet the number of earthquake shocks recorded in Great Britain is very large indeed.

Dr. Charles Davidson, of Cambridge, has given up all his leisure in the last thirty-five years to an investigation of England's little earthquakes. His catalogue begins with the year 874, and goes right on to the present day. The worst period recorded appears to have been about 1750, when there were five notable earthquakes.

The number in Great Britain recorded by Dr. Davidson reached the astounding total of eleven hundred and ninety-one, or an average of more than one a year.

Tiny Room Houses Priceless Collection of Old Coins

Hidden away at the top of a tall building, in an unpretentious part of London, England, is a tiny room. Thousands of people pass the building every day, but few glance upwards and none suspect what that room contains.

A short time ago I mounted the long flight of stairs (writes a London newspaper man) rapped at the door, and whispered the password—"Coins." A genial figure appeared and I was welcomed in. It was Mr. William Valentine. Once he was a carpenter on the tramways. Now he is one of the greatest authorities on coins.

"See that safe?" he said, pointing to a corner of the room. "I had to buy that to store 1,200 coins sent to me for classification by the Indian Museum of Calcutta. They were gold, silver and copper coins of the native princes, and the whole collection was priceless. Ten years ago I began the task and it is not finished yet, for I have been stricken with writer's cramp."

"Lady Of the Peony Rose"

Peonies Flourish to Utmost Perfection In Canada

A blaze of color will meet the eyes of those who visit the C.P.R. pavilion at Wembley early in July; for 5,000 peony blooms will soon be shipped overseas from Canada for exhibition purposes.

Canada has long enough been heralded as "Our Lady of the Snows," say those who are behind the scheme. The time has come when she should be known as "Our Lady of the Peony Rose."

The bulk of the blossoms will be cut from plants grown by W. Ormiston Roy, well-known landscape gardener of Montreal. In order that everything may be done to keep the blooms in proper condition, John F. Roy will go over with them on the boat; for it is believed that this is the first time cut flowers have been sent across the ocean on a considerable scale. A temperature varying with the humidity, but below 40 degrees Fahrenheit, is required for the best results.

W. Ormiston Roy's world-famous collection of peonies, recognized as the greatest and largest assemblage of the classic sorts old enough to produce exhibition blooms, will be supplemented by a few rare kinds from the noted peony gardens of H. Norton, Ayercliffe, Que.

Mr. Roy has a growing ambition to have the peony recognized in Canada at its true value as a landscape plant; and he claims that it is the only beautiful hardy plant that will thrive the length and breadth of Canada. This is a rare and proud distinction, because our national emblem, the maple, cannot exist in many parts of our country. The peony requires less care than any other plant or shrub, and will succeed in any good garden soil, provided it is exposed to sunlight and is well drained. Given these simple conditions, and if it is not planted more than two or three inches below the surface of the soil, it will grow in any province of the Dominion, even the Klondike, he says.

The varieties which Mr. Roy intends exhibiting at Wembley will include such rare sorts as La France, Solange, Tourangelles, Sarah Bernhardt, Enchantresse and Avalanche—all of which are seldom seen in such perfection in English gardens. In fact, in no country in the world do they flourish as in Canada—not even in China, where the first peonies came from, and where for upwards of a thousand years the plant has been regarded with love and reverence.

From Mr. Norton's garden will come blooms of such unusual varieties as Kellway's Glorious, which originated in England; Le Cygne, perhaps Victor Le Moine's greatest contribution to the peony world; Martha Bulloch and Mrs. Edward Harding's outstanding varieties of American origin, all of which still range from $25 to $100 a plant.

Mr. Roy points out that if Canadians once appreciate the value of the peony in landscape planting, every city and village in the country could be as noted for peonies in a comparatively few years as Portland, Oregon, is now famous for its roses. Canada yet has the opportunity to preempt the peony and to grow it in every garden where there is a yard or two of soil open to the sun. No other country has yet awakened to its wonderful possibilities.

The population of the Japanese capital is now 1,917,000, or only about 120,000 less than before the earthquake. In Yokohama the population is 390,000, as compared with 422,000 before the earthquake.

Tree Grew From Cane

Cottonwood Stick Was Planted in Kansas Fifty Years Ago

One of the largest trees in Hutchinson, Kas., has grown from a Judge's cane.

Fifty-one years ago, in April, 1874, Judge W. R. Brown, the first judge of this judicial district, was walking along East Sherman Street in Hutchinson twirling a cottonwood stick. Amos Plank, veteran jeweller, who vouches for the story, was working in his yard when Judge Brown came along.

"Well, I guess I'd better plant you a tree," the judge remarked, and he stuck his cane into the soft ground in front of the Plank home. Plank was called away from home for the summer. When he returned he found the cottonwood stick had sprouted. He left it in the ground. Today it is one of the largest cottonwood trees in Hutchinson.—New York World.

UNSURPASSED FOR CHILDHOOD AILMENTS

Mrs. Howard King, R.R. No. 5, Truro, N.S., says: "I am the mother of four children and have always used Baby's Own Tablets when any of them needed a medicine, and I can recommend the Tablets as being unsurpassed for childhood ailments." Thousands of other mothers agree with Mrs. King as to the merits of the Tablets. There are thousands of homes throughout Canada where the Tablets are always kept on hand in readiness for the least sign of any of the minor ailments which afflict little ones. Baby's Own Tablets never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels, thus they banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and rimple fevers; relieve colic and bring the baby through that dread teething period in safety. The Tablets never do harm—always good—as they are guaranteed absolutely free from any injurious drugs. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

They have been in successful use for a long time and are recognized as a leading preparation for the purpose. ### TOWN AND DISTRICT

Yes it has been pretty hot the past week.

About enough stampede for one year.

Chautauqua opens Saturday and have you bought your ticket?

So far Gleichen crop prospects were never brighter—despite some hail.

Gleichen certainly needs a real camping ground—these days and nights.

Rev. Mr. Gibney and wife have gone to Waterton Lakes for a brief holiday.

It's hot! We have hardly enough dashes to express all the adjectives heard these dog days.

The Queens Hotel is being fitted to capacity these days. Monday night every room and bed was occupied as well as a number of cots.

The work of straightening out and repairing the sidewalks from the damage of the flood started Monday and is now complete.

No doubt about it—Gleichen got the biggest advertising at the Calgary stampede last week—"The All Blacks from Gleichen" did it.

It is rumored around that a number of American cities are endeavoring to get the "All Blacks from Gleichen" to visit them and it is said offer as high as $15,000 to secure the world's longest team.

Tuesday afternoon, Major Lewis, D. O. C. Lieut. R. M. Stabback and L. M. Webster left Gleichen with 15 men of the 22nd Battery C. F. A. for Sarcee Camp to spend a few days at special gun firing.

It might occupy less space to quote who in Gleichen stayed at home than those who attended Calgary's big Jubilee Stampede. Exhibition—most everyone spent a day on two in the old downtown last week.

Why not yank out all the sidewalks grade them up and cover with cinders? Repairs in future could be done with a few shovels of cinders and the town would never be in danger of a lawsuit by someone falling over a loose plank. It is worth trying!

The Town Council in this issue requests all householders to destroy the weeds in and around their property, and state provisions of the Noxious Weed Act will be strictly enforced. This is a move in the right direction and it is hoped that all concerned will join heartily in this very necessary work.

It would be very interesting to have a record of the tourists who pass through Gleichen every day. There have been a good many hundred the past few weeks, but there appears to be no way of getting a complete record of who they are, where they come from and where they go. Can someone devise a scheme to record them?

The Gleichen town fathers have decided to accept part payment of taxes and in this issue request all who can to pay their taxes in full or in part as the town is in need financially to keep up the fixed charges such as power, light and debentures. On Sept 5th all taxes then unpaid will be required to be paid quarterly payments not later than the 15th of each month, or collections will be enforced by distress.

Activities in the gas fields include the construction shortly of a "scrubbing" plant to eliminate odors from the gas being brought into Calgary, the construction of another ten-inch gas line from the Turner field into Calgary, and the possible introduction of an industrial rate for the use of "The Mikado." Music lovers, if you are hungering for a feast of good music, be sure to hear this charming comic opera which will be presented to you by Chautauqua on the evening of the second day.

New "Baby City" of Ontario

(1) North Bay's Main Street.

(2) The Canadian Pacific Station, North Bay.

(3) The Post Office.

An Old Home Week Celebration to celebrate the attainment of City status will be the big attraction for Northern Ontario the first week in August. North Bay, to-day the largest town in the Province, with a population officially estimated at 13,011, will become the Baby City of Ontario on Sunday, August 2nd. For the following six days, it will be a case of "open house" with all the well-known hospitality of the North Country.

Special services in all the City churches, conducted in most cases by former pastors, who were identified with the early history of the town, will inaugurate Old Home Week. The following day officialdom takes charge with "Civic Day" when the formal presentation of the City Charter will be made at Memorial Park and representatives of the Federal and Provincial Governments will extend their congratulations to the Gateway City of the North.

Typically rebuilt, two privately owned parks have had to be taken over for the year and other large expenditures incurred, but the citizens are behind the celebration movement and are determined to make it something that will be long remembered in the Northland.

The history of North Bay is one that is not generally known to all Canadians, even though the name is familiar from the Atlantic to the Pacific, as a great railroad centre. North Bay was originally discovered by Samuel de Champlain in 1615 and was a post on the old trail from the Ottawa to the Great Lakes in the time of the great French explorer.

The first settlements here are recorded as in 1855, with the coming of the first train over the Canadian Pacific Railway. North Bay was never incorporated as a village. Like Topsy, it just grew and became officially a town in 1891. In 1895, the population was 2,024, in 1905 it was 3,312, and in 1915 it was 10,441, and the last municipal census placed it at 13,011, while the rapid growth of the town this year indicated that it will be at least 15,000 when it takes its position as a City next August.

The Canadian Pacific paved the way for North Bay. The old Grand Trunk followed with its first train in June, 1888. Next was Northern Ontario's own railway, the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario, which was built north to the mining areas from North Bay in 1904, the first train being operated out of here on January 15th, 1905. The Canadian Northern was the fourth line to come in here, their first train arriving on September 14th, 1915.

Three and a half tons of gold bullion pass through North Bay every month from the Northern Mines, together with 18 tons of silver bullion, 503 tons of high-grade silver ores, 6,030 tons of pulp and 12,450 tons of paper. It makes a formidable array when checked up.
